ABOUT THE COMPANY

Arthur Mitchell and Dance Theatre of Harlem

Dance Theatre of Harlem was established in 1969 by Arthur Mitchell, a former principal dancer with the New York City Ballet, as his personal commitment to the people of Harlem. Mitchell is world renowned as an accomplished teacher, choreographer and dancer. His years at City Ballet were groundbreaking, and he quickly rose to the position of premier danseur, dancing in all of the major ballets in the Company's repertoire.

Following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Mitchell chose as his mission to introduce young people, particularly those who were economically and culturally disadvantaged, to the beauty and discipline of dance. His pioneering efforts established Dance Theatre of Harlem, now a world-class, neo-classical ballet company with an accredited school and a full range of community outreach activities.

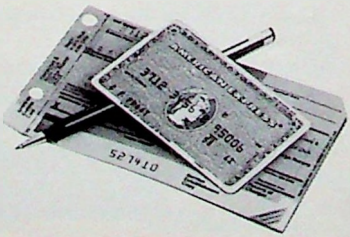

DTH began as a small ballet school in the basement of a Harlem church. It quickly grew to accommodate over 400 students, and the professional DTH Company premiered at the Guggenheim Museum in 1971. The Company's unique style formed through a deliberate expansion of classical ballet. From the beginning, DTH opened its doors for unprecedented artistic endeavors and in doing so, created an explosion of professional opportunity in dance and the allied arts in Harlem and throughout the country.

DTH's annual seasons, both domestic and international, have piled up box-office and attendance records. Command performances for European royalty and historic engagements at London's Royal Opera House Covent Garden were among the highlights of DTH's early international acclaim. In recent years, DTH performed at the White House and performs regularly at Washington's Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. In the spring of 1988, DTH was invited to be the first ballet company to perform in the Soviet Union as part of the US/USSR Cultural Exchange Initiative. This historic five-week tour sold out in Moscow, Tbilisi and Leningrad, where the Company received a rare standing ovation at the Kirov Theatre.

The Company's international success continues to be rooted in a strong commitment to the Harlem community. Monthly Open House performances at DTH's School on 152nd Street, Company community concert series and the seminal Arts Exposure program for young people all provide regular artistic and educational showcases in Harlem.

Dance Theatre of Harlem marked its 20th anniversary season in 1989, and celebrated this landmark anniversary with a host of programs and activities. School enrollment soared to record high numbers and the Company's national tour was met with rave reviews and standing room only. Across the country DTH drew audiences of a racial and economic mix not usually seen in large theatres and opera houses.

Now recognized as an influential ballet company of national and international stature, Dance Theatre of Harlem is well-positioned to continue its remarkable growth for the next 20 years and beyond. What started as one man's commitment to change has become a vital addition to this country's cultural landscape.

UNIVERSAL SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA was founded by Gail Hightower in 1978. Universal Symphony is a multi-ethnic/cultural orchestra comprised of some of the nation's leading musicians based in New York. For the past ten years, Universal Symphony has presented over 100 performances throughout the New York area. The orchestra provides a stage for composers whose works are performed too infrequently, as well as opportunities for conductors who might otherwise be excluded. The Universal Symphony seeks to know and express the unity of the world's people through music. Universal Symphony is making its mark in the symphony world. This is the third season the Universal Symphony Orchestra has performed with Dance Theatre of Harlem.

THE CHASE MANHATTAN CORPORATION'S active commitment to the arts has spanned nearly 30 years. It includes one of the most comprehensive corporate art collections as well as extensive philanthropic programs dedicated to supporting both emerging and established arts organizations.

Through its philanthropic program, Chase has provided support to hundreds of cultural organizations throughout the country. In New York, the program encompasses support in the visual and performing arts, public television, botanical gardens and zoos.

This season, Chase sponsorships include the 20th Anniversary National Tour of Dance Theatre of Harlem, the 1988-89 Northeast tour of The Big Apple Circus, as well as membership "Incentive" campaigns at the New York Botanical Garden and the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Other recent sponsorships include the U.S. Tour of American Ballet Theatre, the Caracas Festival engagement of Twyla Tharp Dance, "Fifty Years of Collecting: An Anniversary Selection" at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York and the New Contemporary Masters at City Center.

While The Cape was inspired by a particularly brutal historical incident (Diyarbakir, Ottoman Empire, 1915), persecution is a universal and timeless subject.

The story begins with a prologue, a glimpse of life during peaceful times. The scene changes to the present where a father is being imprisoned for his religious beliefs. Seconds before his execution he transfers to his son a precious family heirloom, The Cape.

As the violence of the war moves closer, the young boy and his girlfriend hide. They reflect on memories of the way life and love used to be. In a desperate effort to save his girlfriend's life, the boy persuades her to switch identities in the hope that the soldiers will mistake him for a woman and take him first. Thus they exchange clothing, with the cape serving as the boy's skirt. Eventually the soldiers discover the couple's reversed identities, but just when death seems imminent, they make one last dramatic attempt to escape.

This ballet was made possible with the support from the National Endowment for the Arts. Additional funds were provided by Lee and John Vogelstein and Courvoisier VSOP.

You'd be amazed at how far a donation can be stretched.

At The Dance Theatre of Harlem, your support goes far beyond the company itself.

You give culturally disadvantaged children the chance to explore their talent through apprentice programs. You enable them to see this expressive art form by subsidizing tickets. And you help provide lectures and demonstrations that encourage them to learn and develop their own special skills.

At Chase, we're certainly proud to support such a company and school as The Dance Theatre of Harlem.

Join Chase In Support Of Great American Art At Its Best.

Not only has their work gained recognition the world over, but their outreach programs have touched the lives of thousands of children right here in New York City.

So please join us in our support.

You'll be lifting so many spirits, including your own.
